

MAP FEST 2023

Transformation

21-27 AUGUST

MELAKA

MAP Fest – Traces of Transformation

The theme for Melaka Arts and Performance Festival (MAP Fest) is 'Traces of Transformation', which speaks in direct correlation of a desire and universal need for performance work that speaks of regeneration through a rekindled past and traditional practice still passed down through generations. Boldly moving forward, capturing the imagination whilst harnessing the potentials offered up by both the collective and the individual. It aims to take each individual thread, to then weave these into a tapestry of knowledge, colour and life. At MAP, artists present individual and collaborative works of art that incorporate the experimental. They produce on-site works and performances that are profound, empowering and transformative to the audiences.

MAP Experimentum – Traces of Transformation

MAP Fest 2023 will include three main directives: residential residential workshops, collaborations, and performances. This year the festival will span over the week leading to 25, 26, 27 August festival weekend.

MAP and the transformative - MAP's focus draws on the power of art to generate awareness of the power of human sense of meaning in transitory conditions. What has contributed to the positive strive and what is our capacity to affect what is a global from an individual level?

'Poor Festival'

To explore these questions, we are extending MAP's art festival model to incorporate the philosophy and power of the 'poor theatre' (Towards a Poor Theatre, Jerzy Grotowski). Here the use of extravagant props, material and decorative ornamentations will be challenged with nature's fundamental power of the use of the body, mind and spirit (the psyche) in the creation of art.

The singer's power is in their vocality; the dancers in their psycho-physicality and the visual artist in their use of available basic materials from both nature and refuse. Innovation is key to the artist's task to convey their stories and their messages. Grotowski coined the term 'poor theatre', defining a performance style that rid itself of the excesses of theatre, such as lavish costumes and detailed sets (hence 'poor'). 'Poor Theatre' centres on the skill of the actor and is often performed with only a handful of props. 'Poor theatre' can be performed anywhere in bare spaces and MAP's connection to this is its site-specificity and proximity to spectators. We experiment with the elasticity within this range and the use of simple and waste materials for expressing the common and deep inner human experience.

Morphing Festival

One challenge is to allow the festival to morph naturally and to meet with transitory support. So ideas are met with the imminent reality. In reality, the festival has its own way of cutting its of path and it is futile to resist. The response from artists has been overwhelming and the wealth is still in within the artistic exchanges the artists bring and the long-term relationship that is monumental in its effect to the artists creative possibilities. This artists-led festival presents a richer and diverse palate of creative works away from commercial and often homogenised market of art production. Artworks originating from the imagination of artists built from individual experiences and wealth from all cultures and life paths, brings a strong human message for positive transformation and a love for art, irrespective of culture, beliefs and religious differences. MAP provides platforms for a collective of individual and independent voices and long-term relationships.

Who are MAP Artists?

MAP artists traditionally are independent artists from all cultures spanning the local and global. They include accomplished professionals as well as emerging individual voices in dance, performance and visual art, music and multidisciplinary practices. At MAP, artists present individual and collaborative works of art that incorporate the experimental. They produce on-site works and performances that are profound, empowering and transformative to audiences. The artists play a vital role in this mental and spiritual shift.

Brahmarakshasa – The Deamon

(30 mins) – performance

The Narada Purana(Hindu Scriptures) describes an episode of Kalmashapada conversing with a brahmarakshasa, whose abode was a banyan tree. The brahmarakshasa told the king that he had previously been a wealthy Brahmin from the country of Magadha named Somadatta. Having mastered the Vedas, Somadatta had grown arrogant from the knowledge he had acquired and his youth, due to which he stopped heeding his preceptor. He was hence reduced to the state of a brahmarakshasa. Unable to experience happiness, he is described to consume the flesh of Brahmins and lead a life of agony.

How Do You Cope?

(20 mins) – performance

A detailed exploration of the small, momentous and even trivial moments of experiencing grief. This past year has lead me to ask the same question over and over and over again. How the F*CK do you cope?

RITHAUDIN ABDUL KADIR

(MALAYSIA)

With a bachelor degree in Performing Arts (Dance) from the University of Malaya, Rithaudin is trained with a strong background in traditional dance where he also travelled, performed and learned in Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines. For the past twenty years, he has been actively involved in numerous traditional and contemporary dance projects both as dancer and choreographer. The breakthrough came in 2014 when he started to move away from the conventional performances and explore into conceptual and experimental works in site specific settings by developing a hybrid between Performance Arts and Performing Arts through the body of improvisation while still preserving the traditional imprint. With this new artistic expression, Rithaudin has regularly been invited to perform in numerous site specific dance festivals locally and internationally. Rithaudin is also an active committee member of Mydance Alliance, the Malaysian chapter of the World Dance Alliance.

Pahit ke? Masam kot! Masin la.

(30 mins) – performance

This work experimenting movement based from what the performers ate. Other than facial expression, performer will expand the 'feel' to other parts of the body especially the limbs. Similarities and differences will be noted and further invistagation with the audience will be engaged.

LYNNE SANTOS

(AUSTRALIA)

Lynne Santos has been a performance artist since 1987. She has been a member of Kinetic Energy, One Extra Company, TOTO, Born In A Taxi, Teatro del'IRAA, Tony Yap Company and others.

Lynne participates in the annual Impro-Exchange and TANK presented by De Quincey Company. She takes part in Precipice, an annual improvisation festival in Canberra. She performs works in various events in Melbourne and Sydney.

Lynne has continued her spontaneous composition practice for over 30 years and has studied it in various settings including Butoh and Body Weather. She has utilised it to generate material for set works for theatre and dance as well as a performance mode in its own right. Improvisation has been an invaluable tool for developing her style of movement and text and is an inexhaustible resource for ongoing discovery and development. She currently continues her investigation of improvisation by experiencing it in the context of trance under the teaching of Tony Yap.

Site and Sound

(15 mins) – performance

Site and Sound is formed by the spontaneous relationship between the artist and music and place. Each time these elements come together, they compose a work that can never be repeated.

LEE KIEN FEI (MALAYSIA)

Lee Kien Fei (Faye) is a trance practitioner. Javanese trance culture and Malaysian trance culture are both traditional customs he currently focused on. In his ritual's performance, natural and manmade elements such as water, flower, kemenyan (incense cones), candles, mantras and more are manifested by his body which offer a connection with the space and viewers. From his training with Tony Yap (Australia/Malaysia) & Agus Riyanto (Indonesia) on the methodology of psycho-physical practice & Bantengan(bull trance) , he confidently shaped himself into a contemporary trance performer. Besides, he works as a tropical fruits farmer at his father's orchard near Northern Perak, Malaysia. A farmer's daily routine provides him a great opportunity of grounded training and meditating in mental stability that enables him to balance his living and art practice.

I am Living and I am Living

(10 mins) – performance

"i am living" series revolves around the theme of living. I explore various aspects of life through my body, daily routine, environment and senses to depict the complexities and emotions we experience. I appreciated that #iamliving.

TEAM IN-FEST

(MALAYSIA)

Team IN-FEST is an evolving collective of artists, musicians and like-minded individuals- some were born in Melaka, others have come from elsewhere and decided to stay. All are united with a share sense of "Our Town" - a celebration of occupying a charming, magical, stimulating place and the potential of collective creativity. In 2011 Team IN-FEST held its first festival, an ambitious coming together of musicians, artists, performers and others in commercial, home and improvised venues in central Melaka. Team IN-FEST continues to quietly seed, percolate and grow projects and has for the last decade contributed richly to MAPfest.

Untamed Garden

(2 hours) – installation / performance

An experimental and durational performance that hope to slow down the audiences' tempo thru slow binding of ropes by a macrame artist; intertwine with looping electronics music by a sound artist and a real host of the house. They also wish to explore their own existence in the present space in relative to one another with the presence of audiences.

KAR KAH CHAN

(MALAYSIA)

Kar Kah's research on local Chinese dance surrounds the ancestral traditions and somatic memories of the Malaysian Chinese community, and their influence on Chinese dance in Malaysia. With later involvement in Chinese opera and Chinese martial arts (Nan Quan), she seeks the commonality between the body movements of these arts and the integration between them in Tanah Melayu. Her works also focus on Chinese philosophy, oriental body movements, and their integrations between the cultural exchanges in Southeast Asia.

DŌNG

(15 mins) – performance

DŌNG', continuous motion of a life-form, a physical object, a centripetal force and movements of the inner dimensions. From our perspective of embodying traditional philosophies to understanding the way of things, there's always circles, roundness, and curves in the inevitable inertia of thinking patterns in the Chinese culture. What kind of sound would it be? If the way of roundness can surround one's life. A humming voice, a sharp beat, an overwhelming frequency, a calming sound wave. It's the sound from the oriental land, that humbles these immovable bodies.

RONGGENG : PREPARATION TO

(15 mins) – performance

The dynamics of the world that continues to be in a situation that is not palpable, encourages humans to move towards the safest body shape for living. The transformation movement as an identity defense mechanism to deal with the phenomena and ambivalence that occurs. Prepares the body from old patterns to acquire new roles and patterns of life context. A transitional dimension where traces of the old pattern remain and the new pattern has not yet fully become. Ronggeng will try to find his existence in a world that is constantly changing.

Awaknung to a New World

(20 mins) – performance

Where am I?

Often in my travels, I wake up in an unfamiliar bed and rooms. Often dazed and sometimes disturbed and beguiled.

How do I find the peace to be able to sleep again?

How do I find comfort in uncomfortable places?

There is this sensation of being trapped in dreams. Actually mix of feelings and struggles that the body knows. In this piece I try to relive those moments. Through expressive movements, I will depict the suffocating feeling of navigating from one dream to another. This poignant exploration invites audiences to witness the transformative journey of awakening to a new world and the emotions that accompany it.

body of 46

(15 mins) – performance

In June 2023, my grandmother passed away, finally. She had kept mumbling, 'I am ready to go anytime' since her early 90's. So I'd be allowed to say that. She had each one of years 104 times. Lying in bed for the last few years of her life, filled with an abundance of memories. Timelessness. Slowness.

My grandma lost her first husband to the atomic bomb. She remarried to my grandfather, then my mother was born. I wouldn't be here if the bomb had not fallen on Hiroshima that year. I owe my existence to the bomb. Should we call it, a disaster or ... a miracle? This body, as it is.

'A body of 46' is a solo exhibition performance that explores the body's journey, contemplations, and expressions of the past, present and future through cultural and personal interpretations.!

TONY YAP

(MALAYSIA / AUSTRALIA)

Tony Yap, born in Malaysia, is an accomplished dancer, director, choreographer and visual artist. Tony was one of the principle performers with IRAA Theatre (1989-1996). ADELE WILKES

(AUSTRALIA)

The Poison Garden

(15-50 mins) – durational performance

These films are part of a cumulative body of work titled 'The Poison Garden', centred on the relationship between a psychedelic subtropical botanic garden, the reclusive polymath couple who for many years has planted, tended and inhabited it, and the diverse knowledges, generative conversations, experimentations and elemental forces that inform, sustain, and evolve its ongoing existence.

Constructed entirely from field recordings of this carefully curated and cultivated ecosystem, the films reveal a shapeshifting, living pharmacopeia of rare, sacred and sometimes dangerously intoxicating botanical species with complex histories of cultural, spiritual and medicinal use.

Through a non-linear, mycelial structure that echoes the entangled ecology of gardens, the project interweaves ideas around ethnobotany, multispecies intelligence, altered states of consciousness, entheogens, psychonautics, animist cosmologies, alchemy, non dualism, biochemistry, neurodivergence, spiritual ecology and queer knowledge.

Resisting anthropocentrism, the films in 'The Poison Garden'; intimately observe and illuminate intricate details of the more-than-human world through infinite cycles of growth and decay, offering a multisensorial, synaesthetic trip into other(ed) ways of knowing and being.

Adele Wilkes is an artist, filmmaker and researcher whose practice encompasses moving image, sound, photography, projection and installation, with a focus on expanded, experimental and poetic modes of documentary and cinematic storytelling.

Adele's work has been shown in Australia and internationally, including at the Australian Centre for the Moving Image (ACMI), National Gallery of Victoria, Buxton Contemporary, Channels Festival, Aphids, Composite: Moving Image Agency and Media Bank, MONA FOMA, Liquid Architecture, Museum of Brisbane, Sydney Contemporary, The Hellenic Museum, Bunjil Place, National Portrait Gallery, at various film festivals in the UK, US, Europe and the Middle East, and on ABC TV. Her photographic work was shortlisted for the 2019 Bowness Photography Prize, and the 2021 National Photographic Portrait Prize. Recently, Adele's work has been exhibited in Melbourne Now at NGV Australia. She is a member of Women Photograph, a peer assessor for Australia Council for the Arts and a PhD candidate in the School of Art, RMIT.

Konta Basma Spear, is a powerful weapon belonging to Adipati Karna which will be able to kill Arjuna. But Gatot Kaca, who knew about the threat, carried out his duty to defend the Pandavas, even though Gatot Kaca himself knew that Konta Basma's Spear would kill him. "Pancén Perlaya" is his sacrifice as a Kshatriya to defend the honor of the Pandavas and their people. He carried out indiscriminate attacks, with a sad heart because he would be separated from his beloved mother, for the sake of justice for his country.

WOJAK

Changing Poison Into Medicine

(20 mins) – performance

Within me lies a poison, carried since my birth. At times it appeared beautiful, enchanting, its worth. Yet this poison, at times, inflicted immense pain. For I knew not how to handle it, its domain. Now is the time, if this poison can transform. Into a healing remedy, a power to perform. Becoming a skilled physician takes time. And I, too, have learned to manage the poison's chime. Through trials and hardships, the poison did sting, But I have the ability to turn suffering into a joyful thing. With this power, I blend potions anew, Transforming poison into medicine, through and through.
